If you are sustaining frequent falls, bouts of vertigo, imbalance, dizziness, or migraines, you may be experiencing problems within your vestibular system. It is the part of your body that serves as your main balance system.

We are experienced at working with patients with these problems and determining the nature and root cause of their problem. We will devise a customized program for you to assist you to return to your normal level of activity with reduced risk for falling and a restored sense of balance.

It is particularly important to receive proper physical therapy when you have issues with your vestibular system to avoid compounding problems that imbalance issues can create, including a tendency to fall and cause further injuries.
